TO PEACE

That knows no race, no class, no creed;

That lifts the veil of horror from our eyes that we may again see the beauty about us;

That frees our hearts of hate, lust and greed;

That drowns the drums of war with the song of birds, the babble of brooks and the patter of children's feet;

That breeds no malice, harbors no revenge, knows no master;

That reflects her light in a child's face, a nation's destiny, a mother's prayer;

To that Peace, we dedicate this book.

O Ye Dead; your Duty done. Your mark is not etched in stone—only in the memory of those who need no reminder. Buried with high honors—no pomp, no garlands, only a wooden cross. You died to enshrine the right to be right. God swing wide the Golden Gate that your light of freedom may shine forever.

Girls' Athletics

Interscholastic sports have been eliminated for the duration, however the girl's athletic ability has been developed even more than usual through entirely different ways than ever before.

Intramural basketball games have been played, the Sophomores being victorious over all the rest. Teams were organized in each of the high school classes under the following titles: "Tirones," "Sophomore Jerks," "Victory Six" and "Red Lacers." The girls have portrayed increasing skill which is partially due to the enthusiasm shown during the games.

Much interest has been given to a new method of physical development which has been newly introduced to us this year. The course consists of calisthenics which will help fit us to play our part in the war effort. The first problem to confront us was the "Forward Roll." By this time most of us have mastered this, due to previous attempts in our younger days. "Backward Rolls" were next on the list and these we tried to accomplish without breaking our necks. As you may expect, each feat we found just a little more difficult than the previous one. The next thing we tackled was the "Headstand," which to the majority of us seemed almost an impossibility but several did manage to gain the victory. The "Bird's Nest" and "Traveling on the Rings," along with chinning yourself three times in succession, the "Angel Hang" and the "Headstand on the Rings" are the feats which still await our accomplishment. When any of the above have been satisfactorily accomplished, the girl doing so receives a gold star on the chart signifying that she has passed that particular task, and is then assigned to work on something else.

Although we miss the usual basketball and volleyball tournaments we feel that we have really accomplished something in this field in physical training. More girls have been able to participate than usual this year due to the elimination of work done outside of the regular school hours.

Boys' Athletics

Since Mr. Sholly left us, Mr. Stearns and Mr. Webster have very capably taken over our training. Mr. Stearns has taken charge of the Junior and Senior boys while Mr. Webster supervises the Freshmen and Sophomores.

Most of our equipment was built by the Vocational Agricultural Class, and the rest was given by the Senior Class of '42. We surely thank them for their donation. We built hurdles, high jump stands, stand to develop the sense of balance, and a parallel bar. The boys put up the rings on each side of the auditorium for the development of arm muscles. Just to show that isn't so easy as some may think we can cite the example where one of the boys fell off and broke his wrist.

Some of our accomplishments are included in the following: push ups, chins, ten minutes of jumping rope with rhythm, climbing an eleven-foot rope without the use of your feet, high jump, pole vault, broad jump, carry your own weight one hundred yards in less than thirty seconds, run a mile in six minutes and do the inside and outside obstacle courses. There are three different courses in which all of these are used namely: the Cub, Junior and Senior Commando courses. The Senior Course is held out of doors, while the other two are used to build up to this one. We are marked according to what we CAN do and what we do.

During the past year we have not had as much inter-scholastic competition as we would have liked, but more development has been made for a greater number of people rather than for just a small group as was done previously. We miss the other sports and activities but we are willing to sacrifice or accomplish anything to win the present conflict the quickest.

Glee Club

The Glee Club met this year under the direction of Miss Golos on Monday the sixth period and Thursday the fourth period. The chorus consisted of fifty-three members which is the largest number that has ever attended this club. The Glee Club sang for the P.-T.A. Christmas program besides having a Christmas party of its own. The Glee Club is really two voice classes which meet separately.

Ten girls have been chosen from the group for the Girls' Ensemble, and they will be entered in the Music and Forensic League.

Class History

As we finished our last year in the elementary grades we felt quite grown up to be proudly marching on into high school. First, we went to Mr. Mitchell's room, or the laboratory, where he set us right, or at least tried to. We were very mixed up at first, not knowing the East room from the West room. There were over fifty of us so you can just imagine what a time the teachers had! Finally, we were organized enough to elect Maxine Brotzman for our class president. After that, we really got down to work. We broke the barometer by taking out all of the mercury, broke the door off from its hinges, and last but by no means the least, we spilled acid all over the floor. We certainly left our trade marks in that room! The next event of importance was our class party. We met in the auditorium and had refreshments after which we went to the theater at Hallstead in the Jackson school bus to see "Babes in Arms."

The following September, we really felt grown up to find ourselves in the sophomore room. We acted more grown up too and showed what kind of a class we really were by our much improved behavior. With Miss Oliver's patient guidance and Jack Fernane for our president, we came through that year without doing much damage. We had our class party in the auditorium, at which we played games, danced and then best of all—we ate!

It hardly seemed possible, but after a short vacation here we were half through our high school career and over in Mrs. Richardson's room. We picked out our class rings and after much anxiety and patient waiting, we came back after Christmas vacation proudly wearing them. Being Juniors, the lot fell upon us to plant the shrubbery for Arbor Day. Our president, Joe Bajkowski, along with the rest of the class, helped us to make this task a success.

Our next headache, and it was a hard one, came when we began our tasks for the prom. We decorated with trailing pine and balloons. After gathering the pine, we dipped it in water and then in lime and hung it on the ceiling. It looked very beautiful, but much to our disappointment and disgust, the following morning after the floor had all been cleaned, we found it covered with lime. Well, there was nothing we could do but take it all down and proceed to put up new—minus the lime. It was a hard job but everyone co-operated and before too long we were finished again and found ourselves enjoying the fun and dancing.

At last, after three long years we find ourselves in the senior room under the supervision of Mrs. Carr. We won't say we're dignified because we're not, but we can say that we're seniors and mighty proud of it too. After much discussion and planning, we had a class party early in February. The seniors had a good time, but we can't guarantee anything about our lower classmen. It wasn't long before we had the plans for our year book, senior play, and Valentine dance well under way. Everything was in full swing and everyone was busy at something. Our dance and play were a real success, thanks to everyone. We chose Mr. Stearns for our class sponsor and with his able and willing assistance we sold candy, ice cream, and soft drinks, and thereby made our senior year a success financially as well as in every other way.

Now as we are ready to graduate we feel that our high school career was well spent. We want to take this opportunity of thanking Mr. and Mrs. Carr, Mrs. Richardson, Miss Oliver, Mr. Webster, Mrs. Brown, Miss Golos and Mr. Stearns, as well as all the other teachers who have guided us through our school days, for their patience and helpful advice.

The Senior Class of 1943.

Class Will

We, the Senior Class of 1943, of the New Milford Consolidated School, are about to leave these happy school days behind us with the memory of the good times that we have shared together.

In leaving our class to face what life has in store for us, we being of sound mind, do will and bequeath the following with our good will and best regard to our teachers and schoolmates.

Harold Barnard wills his happy-go-lucky spirit to Wendell Whitney.

Margaret DeZuba leaves her exaggerated diction to Marjorie Leonard.

To the Sophomore Class we leave a code of the school laws.

Bruce VanCott leaves his red-head in care of "Donnie" Major.

Nellie Anderson wills her height to Anna Tompkins.

To Mrs. Carr, we will an alarm clock so that she can get the muffins baked in time for breakfast.

Donald Johnson leaves his ability to get to school regularly and on time to "Alfie" Richardson.

Mary Klemp leaves her shyness to Lois VanHousen.

Richard Ainey leaves his success in history to David Norris.

To Miss Golos we leave Bruce Darrow to be her handy-man after Eddie goes to the Army.

Iva Seamans leaves her afternoons in school to Carol Carr.

Joe Bajkowski leaves his athletic ability to Ogden Moss.

To "Glo" Hari, Janet Norris leaves her way with Mr. Webster.

We leave our ability to spell to the Junior Class.

Joyce Garrett leaves her method of canning "Pease" to Doris Burchell.

Martha Jones wills her red hair to Gustava Carpenter.

Anne Wilkas donates her recipe for fruit cake to Albert Tunilo.

James Williams leaves his collection of tablets to the school.

To Mr. Stearns, we will another class as good as this one—if he can find one—

Maude Whitney leaves her ability to sew to Nancy Schiavone.

To Ardith Brown, Jeanne Wood leaves her long bicycle rides to school every morning.

Betty Stuart leaves her interest in Latin to Louis Brotzman.

The Senior Class leaves to Mrs. Richardson a cage to keep a few of the wild animals in that are being promoted from the Zoo.

Dorothy Schiavone wills her way with Johnny to Mildred Button.

Maxine Brotzman wills her sparkling vitality to Esther Cole.

The Senior Class leaves their home room to the freshmen for detention period.

Marie Craft leaves her athletic ability to Nelda Gathany.

Mary Carpenter wills her love for debates to Mabel Packer.

To Miss Oliver, we will a husband so that they can both teach here too.

Howard Pease leaves his mustache to Fred Major.

Hattie Gleichman wills her happy school days to Walter Wood.

Betty Gathany wills her spiteful ways to Ruth Ely.

The class wills Mrs. Webster an extra period in Homemaking so that the girls can get their dresses finished.

Harold Wilmarth wills all of his noise to Floyd Hartman.

Jeanne Brown leaves her way with Mr. Carr to Geneva Ralston.

Robert Elbrecht leaves his constant chatter to Jack Burchell.

We will to Mr. Grow a bell to put around his neck so that we can find him.

Jane Towner wills her trim figure to Unadine Hogancamp.

Dwight Jennings wills his tall stature to David Gelatt.

To Mr. Webster we leave an extra record book in case he loses the one he now has.

Anita Benson wills her "Tinny" to the scrap pile.

We will to Mr. Carr a "C" Ration Card in case the OPA takes his away from him.

On this thirtieth day of April, in the year of our Lord one thousand nine hundred and forty-three, we do hereby continue and appoint the class of 1943 as sole executors of this, our last will and testament, with our teachers and Mr. Stearns, our class sponsor for witnesses.

Class of 1943.

Class Prophecy

Setting: Bruce is sitting in his room with a small child on his lap. The child begs him to tell him something about himself and his friends. His mind goes back bringing memories from about ten years ago up to the present time.

"It was early morning and the town rang out with excitement. The newsboy stood on the corner shouting, 'Extra, extra, Miss Craft in a serious condition.' Marie Craft—the name took me back several years when I was still going to school with her. I bought a paper and anxiously read it. Marie, who had always been known as an exceptional swimmer had been swimming that afternoon when suddenly her cries were heard from the water. The life-guard in charge soon caught my attention. Dwight Jennings—who would ever think that he would some day become a life-guard? The ambulance soon arrived at the scene. The driver, Richard Ainey, rushed the girl to Dr. Wilmarth. After several hours the girl was out of danger and Dr. Wilmarth placed his nurse, Miss Towner, in charge. It was good to hear that Jane had made a real success. Even when we were in school she wanted to become a nurse."

"Being out of a job at that time, I turned to the classified ad section. Here my eye caught an ad stating that Harold Barnard was paging for farm girls. Somehow, I knew that something was wrong and there must be some mistake for the last I knew he was farming for the Page girls. So Harold was still on the farm! Even while at school, he made his home at the Page farm. From there my mind went back further and further, back to more of my friends. It was then that I decided to go and see Harold. What a change I saw in him! His sun-burned face and muscular hands had made him a real farmer. While I was there a car drove up and a familiar figure stepped out. It was none other than Harold's milk tester, Iva Seamans. From her we learned that Betty Stuart, Lois Sutton, and Janet Norris had become a success in their chosen career, teaching."

"It was soon noon and the men began coming in for their dinner, and before the day was ended it became evident that I was to remain as the new hired man. This pleased me very much you may be sure. Even while back in high school my chief aim was to run a chicken farm, the main interest being centered around Rhode Island Reds."

"In the evening the men all sat down for a smoke, although some preferred to retire early. There, we turned on the radio for our entertainment. Suddenly the announcer who was none other than Nellie Anderson, announced that a girl had mysteriously disappeared from Mansfield State Teachers' College. Miss Wood, the Dean of Women, said that the girl's disappearance had been unnoticed until that afternoon. The report went on to say that Miss Carpenter, the school nurse, had seen the girl walking around on the campus only that morning. They summoned the F. B. I., of which Donald Johnson was now the head, for investigation. What a day for surprises! Nellie Anderson, as quiet as she was, becoming a radio announcer;

Class Prophecy

Jeanne Wood and Mary Carpenter seemed to be doing very well. They had always looked forward to the day when Jeanne would enter Mansfield and Mary become a nurse. I was glad they were still together, for while at school these two were constant companions. Such happenings seemed only part of an exciting day. It wasn't long before I found out that a physical education teacher, Miss Schiavone, was forced to pay Dr. Williams, the dentist, a visit after a misfortune occurred while instructing her class in gymnastics."

"I remained on the farm for quite some time and it seemed that the work was never done, but one day the weather being uncertain we put off the haying. During that afternoon, I managed to pay Anita Benson, one of my friends and former schoolmates a visit. When I arrived there she was about to leave to keep her appointment at Brotzman's Beauty Parlor. When I asked her if there was some special occasion that she was having her hair done she informed me of the opera to be held that evening. Knowing that Jeanne Brown was singing with the Metropolitan Opera and that Joyce Garrett would probably be there dancing, I decided that I too should attend. It would seem good to see your classmates on the stage. Before I could go I must have a hair-cut so I hurried down to Pease's Barber Shop."

"While there I coaxed Howard to attend to me. We talked about some of our old friends, Joe Bajkowski being among them. It was Joe to whom we always took all of our art work to be done and now his work was exhibited at the New York Art Museum."

"After the performance we crossed the street and went into a restaurant for a light lunch before returning home. Imagine our surprise when we were handed a menu by the waitress, Betty Gathany. We all sat down for a chat but her time was limited as the customers continued to come. Hattie and Betty were still sticking together just as they had in school, Hattie being one of the chief cooks at the restaurant. Many miles separated them from their side-kick back in '43—Mary Klemp. Mary continued to find her interest in Scotties—dogs that is."

"While the majority of the class preferred city life Martha Jones and Maude Whitney both agreed with me and they chose to be farmerettes. They always were quiet and industrious girl."

"It was getting late so I returned to the farm. In the morning Harold asked me if anything new happened in town. The only thing of special importance was that we heard that Margaret DeZuba and Anne Wilkas were both employed at Hooten and Co. While returning from work they were struck by a funeral director's car. Neither were badly hurt but the driver, Robert Elbrecht, was being held for questioning."

"Some years after that I settled down on a farm of my own. Days when I went to market I usually saw some of the class and was again reminded of the happy days we spent together back in '43."

Class Poem

Courageous, steadfast, and demure,
All our morals fine and pure
We're quite a group, you will agree—
The Class of 1943.
We'll introduce ourselves to you,
Be patient, there are just a few.

Marie Craft is first on our list;
There's hardly a sport that she has missed.
She's athletic and musical, too,
Always starting something new.

Anita Benson is ever gay;
Her happy smiles chase blues away.
We all think she's quite a gal.
"Benny" is everybody's pal.

Robert Elbrecht, to you we bring;
He's always into everything.
All the girls he likes to tease
But when there's work to do, he flees.

To be a nurse is Joyce's aim,
But she could dance her way to fame.
Red-haired, kind-hearted — that Joyce
Garrett.
Whatever she has she'll always share it.

Jeanne Wood is a Jackson lass,
Leading scholar of our class.
She's efficient in every way.
What more can anybody say?

Next in line, is Richard Ainey;
He's not known for being brainy,
But with all the brawn he's got, perhaps
He'll help to lick the dirty Japs.

Mary Klemp we bring to you;
She's a blonde with eyes of blue.
She's fond of Scotties, as you know.
That's why she learned to cook and sew.

Betty Stuart, wise and sage,
Is here with us on the stage.
She has dimples and laughing eyes,
But when she's mad, look out! Fur flies!

Jimmy Williams, from Lakeside way,
Was a scarecrow in the Senior Play.
Though he's always in a mess,
Jim is sure to find success.

Hattie Gleichman we bring to you;
She's always into mischief, too,
But by a friend she sticks like glue.
That's our Hattie, through and through.

A tall brunette, her name's Maxine,
A charming lass of seventeen.
But we find wherever she goes,
Her mind is on a certain Rose.

A country boy is Bruce VanCott;
Shyness is one thing he hasn't got.
To his red-head, he's quite a charmer,
But his main object is to be a farmer.

Maude Whitney seldom breaks a rule;
She's about the quietest girl in school.
Whatever her work, may she find this true,
Her successes are many and her troubles few.

Dorothy Schiavone—Dot to you—
Always laughing, never blue.
She's anxious to become a nurse
And get her man for better or worse.

Howard Pease, this year has spent,
By being our class president
He was a member of the Senior play,
Prefers square-dancing to Sammy Kaye.

Class Poem

Our class would seem quite out of place
Without Janet Norris' face.
Always running here and there,
Willingly she does her share.

Anne Wilkas, despite her dimpled smile,
Has a temper that's easy to rile.
She likes to hunt and loves to fish.
May she be granted her every wish.

Harold Barnard is a Jackson boy;
His singing is the real McCoy.
President of the F. F. A.,
He's never guilty of unfair play.

Lois Sutton is the next;
This girl surely knows the text.
Seldom wrong when she recites,
She never gets in any fights.

A little girl who's far from tall.
She likes to talk in study hall.
Her lessons ready, just the same,
Nellie Anderson is her name.

The next in line is Jeanne Brown,
Another girl from out of town.
She's full of pep and lots of noise,
Busily writes to soldier boys.

Dwight Jennings is a little mite;
Everybody calls him "Dite."
A fine example of this one thing;
That stature isn't everything.

Martha Jones from Franklin Hill
Always does her work with will.
You'll find her on the honor roll.
We know Martha will reach her goal.

Iva Seamans we present.
Often a helping hand she's lent.
Wherever she is, she brings good cheer.
May she meet success in her career.

Donald Johnson is next, we see.
When in mischief he's full of glee.
Yet he can be serious too—that's clear—
But only when a teacher's near.

A Carpenter whose name is Mary.
In our debates, she's seldom wary,
Never agrees with any text.
She'll be writing her own books next.

A country belle from Franklin Hill
With a fiery temper and stubborn will.
Who can fill this fantasy?
Why it's Betty Gathany!

The artist of our class is Joe;
His work is very good you know.
In a few years, you will see 'em.
In the New York Art Museum.

Jane Towner is the next, we find.
She's a girl who's good and kind.
Into any group, she blends.
All who know Jane are her friends.

Harold Wilmarth is last in line;
His acting in our play was fine;
And, as an athlete, he did his share
To make defeat for our side rare.

And now you've met us all, my friends.
We hope our friendship never ends.
We're sure that we will meet success;
And, with it, we'll find happiness.
For we know, we'll never go wrong
While we're rowing, not drifting, along.
